Water Pressure Restored to Halifax Peninsula

(Wednesday, October 19, 2011) – Halifax Water crews have restored water pressure to affected areas of Halifax Peninsula. Some customers may temporarily experience discoloured water. The water is not a health hazard.

Currently, service to Halifax Peninsula is being supplemented through our MacDonald bridge line from Dartmouth.

When current maintenance is complete and normal supply patterns are restored there is a possibility discolouration could be experienced by some customers. Customers will be advised via PSA posted on our website, www.halifaxwater.ca, and distributed to local media outlets.

Any customers in large office/apartment buildings who are currently experiencing low or no water pressure should contact their building management.

Halifax Water apologizes for any inconvenience this may have caused.
