Dunphy, Alexis Leggat, Bill Campbell, V. Bradshaw, Judith Cooney, Gary and Nancy Bliss, Jana Dempsey, Lee Seshagiri and Anne-Marie Belliveau, Jack Luke, Kelly MacGillivray, Teri Anderson, Adam Reiss, Stella Lord, Pamela Callow, Jamie and Cathy Oland, Tom and Leslie Reynolds, Ingrid and Kevin Latimer, David Wimberly

First reading was given on July 7, 2020.

Jillian MacLellan, Planner III gave an overview of the proposed amendments to the Regional Municipal Planning Strategy and all land use by-laws to allow secondary and backyard suites accessory to single-unit dwelling, two-unit dwelling or townhouse dwellings within all areas of the Municipality, except for areas within Centre Plan Package A.

In response to questions raised, MacLellan explained that the Municipality does not recognize or enforce Restrictive Covenants as these are private agreements with property owners and would be a civil matter. MacLellan clarified that as part of the development permit process for non-serviced properties, the Department of Environment would undertake a review of the property's septic system but that the property owner would be responsible to ensure there was sufficient water to accommodate a suite. MacLellan added that staff did not anticipate traffic issues or impact on property assessments.

Mayor Savage reviewed the rules of procedure for public hearings and opened the floor for anyone wishing to speak on the matter.

Tamar Dina, Halifax – District 8 suggested suites would have an impact on property taxes, and Halifax Water and Nova Scotia Power regulations. They noted that there was no incentive program for property owners to legalize their suite or build a suite. Dina proposed building an additional storey rather than a backyard suite which would allow property owner to keep a garage or shed.

Ted Vaughan, Halifax pointed out that many residents in the Westmount neighbourhood were not aware of the amendments. Vaughan wanted to see Westmount protected under heritage conservation and sought additional clarity on what the amendments would mean for the neighbourhood.

Bill Campbell, St. George, NB representing residents of the Westmount Subdivision, highlighted the analysis done on regulated suites in other Canadian municipalities, noting that staff did not allow for permitting, design standards or an appeal process. Campbell suggested parking should be required and the information on affordable housing was misleading.

Gerry Post, Halifax – District 7 supported secondary and backyard suites, ensuring they were built to accessible standards by adopting an inclusive design standard. They commented on incentives such as waiving development fees and promoting amongst the development industry. Post also proposed not having a limit on the square footage as larger lots could accommodate a larger unit.

Mary Lyn Saturley, Terence Bay spoke to housing inclusivity, highlighting that these suites would generate additional income or allow a resident to stay in the community. Affordable housing was needed and many areas such as Terence Bay have limited to no rental opportunities.

Stella Lord, Fleming Heights spoke on behalf of the Community Society to End Poverty ESIA Transformation Working Group and advocated for all levels of government to work to end poverty. Lord expressed the lack of accessible, affordable housing and short-term rentals in the Municipality. They saw these suites as a way to aid the housing crisis, provide additional income to property owners and allow people to age in place, creating complete communities that include the impoverished.

Jo-Anne Nozick, Central Zone commented on process, transparency and public awareness. Nozick referred to a 2017 study by Meaghan Dalton, Dalhousie University on density and housing affordability.

Sharon Johnson, Westmount agreed with the lack of public awareness and the need for more public consultation. They were concerned with design and wanted to ensure units fit with the Westmount neighbourhood.

Trish Purdy, Cole Harbour supported secondary and backyard suites as a gentle way to increase affordable home ownership without changing neighbourhoods and benefitting aging in place.

Jack Smith, Westmount was not aware of the 2018 online Shape Your City Survey and did not support the amendments. Smith wanted to preserve R-1 zoning, suggesting the amendments would create more short-term rentals rather than people aging in place, and sensed the neighbourhood and demographic would change.

Kathy Smith, Westmount asked that Westmount be excluded from the amendments, echoing concerns on increased traffic, crowding of housing and greenspace and increased short term rentals.

Adam Grant, Dartmouth East expressed concern with parking, limited to no greenspace, changes in the neighborhoods' character and impact on diversity, suggesting families with children would move away from the city centre. Grants stated it was ill-advised to move forward without setting standards and parking should be required.

Marie Welton, Halifax – District 7 suggested that with appropriate controls in place, secondary and backyard sites might be suitable for small businesses, allowing for more walkable neighbourhoods.

Ashley Salvador, Edmonton, AB and President of Canada Backyard Housing Association explained that these suites were becoming a standard throughout North America, with approximately 50 percent of units being built for family members and friends of the property owner and was a form of housing that develops over time.

Kevin Hooper, Halifax Peninsula – West End spoke on the city's vacancy rate and housing crisis. They agreed that these suites would provide tenants with access to neighbourhoods and critical social supports. Hopper suggested that the challenges and concerns could be overcome with good planning.

Ed MacLean, Halifax suggested that allowing these suites would take away from the peaceful Westmount neighbourhood. They were concerned with the lack of compensation and notification and questioned the meaning of affordable housing.

Ken Bagnell, Halifax provided an example of secondary suites in Vancouver, suggesting it would be possible for HRM but could be challenging for certain neighbourhoods. Bagnell noted that consideration and consultation was needed on the layout and neighbourhood impact, as well that the units would increase traffic in already congested areas.

Liam O'Rourke, Dartmouth and Director of LakeCity Works supported the amendments and spoke to the affordable housing needs and use of tiny homes as backyard suites. O'Rourke agreed that these suites were a great option for aging parents or housing for an adult child.

Bill Stewart, Halifax on behalf of Neighbours Speak Up spoke in support of the proposal for secondary and backyard suites. They asked that commercial short-term rentals be designated for commercial tax. They asked that Council review other municipalities for short term rentals.

Alex Leggat, Halifax read from Eric Thomson's submission, outlining the impact the amendments would have on the Westmount neighbourhood and seeking future consultation.

Troy Doyle, Dartmouth – District 6 suggested that future work was needed on engagement with the public.

Beverly Miller, Halifax agreed with concerns raised and the need for more public consultation.

Candice Hayman, District 7 suggested the best way to provide housing options was to work with developers and not alter already established residential neighbourhoods. They commented on converting commercial short-term rentals into long term rentals. Hayman pointed out that these suites would compromise neighbourhoods and impact the housing market and values.

Tony Folkins, Halifax did not support the proposal and sought future public consultation.

Justin Quigley, Halifax – District 8 spoke in support of secondary and backyard suite, echoing points made on housing needs and benefits of affordable housing and aging in place.

Nick Horne, Upper Tantallon supported the amendments and spoke to the housing crisis and vacancy rate. Horne suggested Council approve the square footage up to maximum floor area of an average home in HRM. Horne also suggested that garage doors be refitted to a residential wall and door to limit people from placing furniture in garages and calling them suites.

Barbara Emodi, Fairview supported the proposed amendments and commented on the contribution people who live in secondary suites bring to the community.

MOVED by Councillor Mason, seconded by Councillor Nicoll

THAT the public hearing be closed.

MOTION PUT AND PASSED.

MOVED by Councillor Mason, seconded by Deputy Mayor Blackburn

THAT Halifax Regional Council adopt the proposed amendments to the Regional Municipal Planning Strategy and all land use by-laws, with the exception of the Regional Centre Land Use By-law (Package A), as set out in Attachments A and B of the supplementary staff report dated June 2, 2020, to allow secondary suites and backyard suites accessory to single-unit, two-unit or townhouse dwellings.

Members of Council agreed with the opportunities these suites would bring for accessible, affordable housing, additional income and aging in place. It was suggested that the concerns raised could be addressed through the Center Plan.

Staff clarified that including parking requirements was prohibitive, pointing out that many suites would be used by family members but suggested either alternate arrangements could be made or perhaps the unit would not be rented out to someone that required parking if it could not be provided. MacLellan noted that the suites would have other permitted uses such as for home-based businesses or workshops.

MOVED by Councillor Mancini, seconded by Councillor Russell

THAT Halifax Regional Council extend the meeting past 10:00 p.m.

MOTION PUT AND PASSED.

The discussion ensued with staff responding to questions on HRM's Shape Your City Survey completed in 2018 and public notification for the hearing. MacLellan clarified that the setback requirements vary between each Land Use By-law based on when it was written and public input. MacLellan also noted that Land Use By-laws could not dictate tenure.

In response to a question on performance standards to address accessibility, Josh Judah, Senior Solicitor clarified that a request for a supplementary report could be made separate to this motion.

MOTION PUT AND PASSED UNANIMOUSLY.
