

When do I contact my Divisional Office?

Your first step is to report incidents to police as soon as you are aware of them (see numbers below). You can call the Divisional Office after-the-fact and we'll work with you to reduce crime and address ongoing quality-of-life issues in your community including:

- Excessive noise
- Traffic violations
- Property damage
- Break and enters
- Loitering
- Thefts
- COVID-19 violations

Central Divisional Office – 902.490.6070
Monday to Friday, 8:30 a.m. – 4:30 p.m.
Halifax Regional Police Headquarters,
1975 Gottingen Street, Halifax

In case of an emergency, call 911.

A situation is considered to be an emergency if someone's life or property is in immediate danger or if an incident is in-progress. In-progress is defined as currently happening, the suspect may still be in the immediate area and/or the victim is still in danger.

Reporting an incident

Call 902.490.5020 to report incidents that require an officer to come to the scene, including break and enters where it's obvious the culprit is no longer present and noise complaints in-progress.

Call 902.490.5016 for general inquiries and/or to report crimes not in-progress. You can also report a number of crimes not in-progress online at halifax.ca/fire-police/police/reporting-crime/online-crime-reporting.

Other common quality-of-life issues

Call 311 for non-emergency municipal government services in Halifax, including animal-related public safety and nuisance issues, unsightly properties, garbage collection and parking enforcement.

Tips for being a good neighbour

Remember that you are a part of the community and a representative of your university/college.

Stay informed on COVID-19 directives and enforcement measures. Visit novascotia.ca/coronavirus/ for more information.

Be aware of how your actions affect your neighbours and community. If your neighbours have young children or have to get up early, late night noise may be an issue for them.

Take pride in your community by keeping your property neat and tidy. While landlords may be responsible for cutting grass and snow removal, in most cases, tenants are responsible for garbage and other issues that make a property unsightly.

Educate yourself on garbage collection times and regulations. Visit halifax.ca/home-property/garbage-recycling-green-cart/garbage-collection for more information.

Quality-of-life concerns in university neighbourhoods

HALIFAX

The situation

In September, Halifax becomes home to thousands of students who attend Dalhousie University, Saint Mary's University and University of King's College. This year, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, students who are attending campus in person must adhere to regulations as outlined by the Government of Nova Scotia. Everyone is strongly encouraged to educate themselves on these requirements by visiting novascotia.ca/coronavirus.

Every year, police respond to complaints related to the actions of students who live both on and off campus. In that regard, this year is no different. The major neighbourhood concern is noise, but we also receive complaints of liquor offences, property damage and by-law offences such as unsightly premises. In many cases, the offenders aren't aware of the impact their actions have on their neighbours or other members of the community. The communities around the universities are made up of a mixture of single-family houses and rental properties primarily utilized by students. Disruptive behaviour is not acceptable. As Halifax residents, everyone is expected to ensure their actions don't negatively impact the quality-of-life in our community.

What we're doing

Each September, we launch Operation Fall-Back, an approach that consists of education, outreach and enforcement as necessary. Operation Fall-Back runs throughout the month of September and features directed enforcement and additional patrol in known complaint areas around these communities.

Halifax Regional Police created this brochure to educate residents on common offences, repercussions for being an offender and what to do if you experience a quality-of-life issue.
